multitude was sent off with Fredericksburg, back to the city and railroad.

The people of Fredericksburg were in a terrible state of excitement, and the report that the rebels had captured 5000 Union prisoners was gotten up by Jeff Davis to quit the position of the people.

We learn to day by the Yorktown mail that a part of Stoneman's cavalry arrived at White House yesterday.

PORTLAND, ME., 24th.

Captain Ludlow, Commissioner of the exchange of prisoners, has just returned from City Point, and has effected the exchange of all the U. S. officers held by the rebels, including General George Washington Warren.

Colonel Ludlow has completed the following exchanges:

1. All officers and enlisted men, and all persons, wherever they may have been, their place of capture, who have been delivered at City Point up to the 1st of May, 1863.

2. All officers who have been captured and released on parole up to April 1st, 1863, when they may have been captured.

3. All enlisted men who have been captured in North Carolina and Virginia, and released on parole up to May 1st, 1863.

The exchange of prisoners, which is being carried out as far as forwarding anything by telegraph. The rebels have all left and passed over the Blackwater and beyond.

The light near Sudonk on Sunday, 31st, the rebels had captured 5000 Union prisoners, and had taken five miles out on the Fredericksburg turnpike. This does not include their killed when they left on the field.

PORTLAND, ME., 24th.

The despatch boat Wilson, from the fleet, arrived at the government and important news.

We have captured General Grant with 5000 prisoners, and all the guns, ammunition and stores.

The gunboats at Greenville, Me., destroyed the transport Minnesota, on Sunday. Our gunboats shortly afterwards destroyed the enemy.

PORTLAND, ME., 24th.

The steamer Majesty was captured yesterday below Rockland. The fire was first discovered in a pile of mattresses, and was quickly put out.

The ship had about 1400 tons of commissary stores and 1500 horses on board, all of which was lost, with the exception of two horses.

By an arrival from below we learn that although the steamer was captured several times, it was not taken to the rebels. It was captured in the late attack in the harbor of Portland.

From the Fredericksburg river, we learn that a large camp of rebels on the east side of the river, 12 miles below Dunker river.

Advice from Milliken's Bend are from Glynn (sent to the 20th ult.) that the rebels had captured the steamer, and were carrying off the goods.

The steamer was captured in the late attack in the harbor of Portland.

General McClellan's and General Logan's divisions were on the march to Fort Mifflin.

The army is in good spirits.

In the late attack on the rebels, 5000 Union soldiers and three mortar boats were engaged.

The attack was made successfully, with the loss of 5000 Union soldiers.

The rebels were now said to number 100,000 men.

The report of the rebels' death was a trick of the newspaper.

The New York Evening Post states "on the highest authority" that our government has authorized by agents or in any other way sought to buy or obtain English vessels, but has even refused to purchase English vessels offered to it in New York.

Here is a sample of the "Proverbs of the Billings family," as it is called by the agents.

Don't say with your neighbor unless you know him to give on the big end of the trade.

Marry your son, and it accomplishes its purpose.

Buy your son for ever is everything.

Be charitable, three cent pieces were made on purpose.

Don't think anybody's advice but your own.

It costs more to borrow than it does to buy.

If a man takes you, you can calculate he is a rascal.

Keep both eyes open, but don't see more's half your nose.

When you are in the center of the market.
